Loyola's IP Special Focus Series Examines Ethics and the Patent Process

Los Angeles, Nov. 15, 2006 —Loyola Law School's newest IP Special Focus Series, "Ethical Issues in Patent Procurement, Licensing and Litigation," will feature some of the West's foremost authorities on codes of conduct in the patent process. The program runs Friday from 8 a.m. – 2 p.m. on Loyola Law School's downtown campus.

The keynote speaker is Michael Josephson, founder and director of the Joseph & Edna Josephson Institute on Ethics. The lunch speaker is Randall R. Lee, Esq., regional director, Pacific Regional Office, US Securities and Exchange Commission on Sarbanes-Oxley Issues Involving Intellectual Property.

Sessions include "Ethical Responsibilities in Patent Prosecution" and "Ethical Responsibilities in Patent Transactions and Litigation." Panelists include top attorneys in the field of patent law. Further details and a complete schedule are available at events.lls.edu/ip-focus/ppll.

Registration is $195 a person, with a discounted rate of $135 for professors, government employees and employees of non-profit organizations. Students and members of the media are invited to attend free of charge. For media access, please contact Brian Costello at 213-736-1444 (desk), 213-923-0609 (cell) or brian.costello@lls.edu.
