LITIGATIONCastaneda v. University of California Board of Regents, No. 99-0525 SI (N.D. Cal.) (formerly Rios v. UC Regents)

Case filed in February by the Legal Defense Fund (LDF) in coordination with other civil rights organizations on behalf of African-American, Latino and Filipino students denied undergraduate admission to UC Berkeley after the elimination of affirmative action pursuant to California Proposition 209. Led and coordinated the representation of the African-American, Latino and Filipino classes and served as lead counsel for the African-American class. The lawsuit alleged that Berkeley's undergraduate admissions process violated Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and its implementing regulations as well as the Fourteenth Amendment because Berkeley made admissions decisions on educationally insignificant differences in SAT scores and unfairly penalized applicants attending schools with limited Advanced Placement and honors course offerings. The district court approved a settlement agreement requiring Berkeley to retain a consultant specializing in measurement of "multiple intelligences" and to produce specified admissions statistics for five years.

Gonzalez v. Abercrombie & Fitch, No. 03-2817 SI (N.D. Cal.)

Lead LDF attorney on legal team representing minority plaintiffs in a national employment discrimination class action lawsuit. The suit charges Abercrombie & Fitch with discriminating against non-whites, including African Americans, Latinos and Asian Americans, on the basis of race, color and/or national origin in hiring, firing, job assignment, compensation and other terms and conditions of employment.

Hunter v. City of Los Angeles (LAPD), No. 92-CV-1897-MMM (C.D. Cal.)

Had responsibility for enforcing consent decree as lead counsel for African-American sworn police officers who have sought or will seek promotion to certain ranks, paygrades and coveted positions within the Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD). The LAPD was bound by the terms of the consent decree through 2009.

Wessmann v. Boston School Committee, No. 97-11923-JTL (D. Mass), No. 98-1657 (1st Cir.)

Lead counsel representing the Boston NAACP and several member parents as "litigating amici" in lawsuit filed by a white ninth-grade student who alleged that the Boston Latin Examination School admissions policy discriminated against her on the basis of her race. The trial court ruled against the plaintiff, finding that the Boston Latin admissions policy was narrowly tailored to meet the Boston School Committee's compelling governmental interests in diversity and in overcoming the vestiges of past discrimination, 996 F. Supp. 120 (D. Mass. 1998). The First Circuit reversed, 160 F.3d 790 (1st Cir. 1998).

Erik V. v. Causby, No. 5-97-CV-587-BO (2) (E.D.N.C.)

Responsible for original research, LDF justification memorandum, drafting pleadings, briefs and major correspondence, and experts. Represented a multi-racial class of African-American, Latino and Caucasian students in challenge of a high stakes standardized testing policy adopted by the Johnston County (North Carolina) Board of Education. The policy required that decisions to promote students to the next grade level or course be based solely on the outcome of scores on a newly-adopted standardized test without regard to the student's grades, teacher evaluations or other assessment criteria. The parties reached settlement after defendants promoted the fourteen named class representatives and made significant changes to the policy.
