Loyola University School of Law is firmly committed to a policy against discrimination on the basis of race, creed, color, religion, national origin, or sex.

It specifically adhere to Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 and the implementing regulations in its prohibition of discrimination on the basis of sex in admission to or employment in the educational programs and activities which it operates. Inquiries concerning Title IX may be directed to:

Michael B. Harwin, Assistant Dean Loyola University School of Law

(213) 642-3135; or
Director, Office of Civil Rights,
Department of Health, Education and Welfare.
Law schools have always transmitted certain skills by the "learning by doing" method. Legal research, legal analysis and synthesis, and writing of legal briefs and scholarly works are subjects generally found in every law school's curriculum. Appellate advocacy skills taught through moot court competitions was and is traditionally encouraged.

The balance of a lawyer's skills were generally not taught in the curriculum because of time constraints, the lack of consumer demand and a feeling that the teaching of skills courses was a function of the practicing profession or was not susceptible to pedagogic technique.

Whatever the history, for the past several years Loyola's Law Clinics have formed an important part of the professional curriculum. Over 200 second and third year students are enrolled in some twenty-two clinics. These practice experiences might vary from the representation of parents accused of child abuse before the Juvenile Court, to the reviewing of applications for permits to issue securities in the California Department of Corporations; from serving a legal internship with the mayor of Los Angeles to representing inmates from the California Institution for Women on habeas corpus writs; from developing TITLE VII cases for the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to service in a judicial clerkship with the Court of Appeals.

Loyola's Law Clinics are divided into two broad categories of practice experiences. The first, the Loyola Law Clinics — located at 1800 West Sixth Street — is Loyola's own law office, staffed exclusively by our own full-time faculty, students and staff. Here, we handle general civil practice problems appropriate to a neighborhood law office. We also specialize in the representation of parents in dependency and neglect and abandonment proceedings, in representing minors accused of crime and we provide inmate legal services to the California Institution for Women at Corona. Under Assistant Dean Lola McAlpin-Grant, a Consumers Affairs Unit handles a wide variety of consumer cases as a clinical component of her class in that subject.

These clinics are staffed by myself, Professor Laurie Harris, the Assistant Director of Loyola Law Clinics, and four full-time adjunct faculty — Professors Elena Ackel, Ralph Bochés, Will Gorenfeld and Gary Weinerman. Together with several student directors and some sixty second and third year students, the clinics carry a client's case from initial referral through counseling, trial or agency hearing, and any appeals. The entire pathology of a case is taught, both in the classroom as well as in the law office and the courtroom. Interviewing, investigation, research, drafting, trial preparation, trial negotiation, settlement, counseling and preventive law as working tools of the lawyer are taught in the context of the actual representation of a real client during the course of one full year in the clinic. Student practice rules permit students to appear in state courts, examine witnesses, and argue appeals when under the supervision of qualified attorneys.
Another 140 students are enrolled in one or two semester programs in more than fifteen state, city, federal, and community legal agencies. Representative placements include:

- Legal Aid Foundation
- Watts, Alvarado and East L.A. Offices
- Los Angeles County District Attorney (Trials)
- California Attorney General (Environmental, Criminal Appeals)
- Los Angeles City Attorney (Criminal trials-civil practice)
- Equal Employment Opportunity Commission
- Federal Public Defender
- U.S. Attorney
- One Stop Immigration Service
- Securities Exchange Commission
- Courts of Appeal
- Federal Magistrates Courts
- L.A. County Superior, Municipal Courts (Clerkships)
- The California Department of Corporations

Adjunct Professors Joseph Charney, Edward Mizrahi, Steve Kaufman, Thomas Pollack, William Hobbs, Gary Manulkin, Marilyn Holle and Judge Robert Fainer both supervise students in field placements and teach the academic seminars which parallel a student's practical experience.

Clinical education is expensive because "learning by doing" instead of "learning by learning" is labor intensive in terms of teaching and supervision. Today, most of Loyola's graduates enter practice not only with a familiarity of aspects of law practice but some experience as well. If you are saying, "I wish I'd had that program when I was at Loyola..." you're right. . . and there is just the program for you — Loyola's CLE — but that's another story in another issue of the Loyola Lawyer.

Come by our clinics anytime and if you have special expertise and you would be willing to share with our students, please contact us.
The Advocates Fund was founded in 1961 as the annual fund rising campaign for Loyola Law School. The purpose of the Fund is to solicit and encourage gifts to Loyola Law School for scholarships and general advancement.

The Advocates Fund’s goal is to encourage all alumni of Loyola Law to become Advocates by making an annual gift.

IN MEMORIAM

JOSEPH P. BUSCH, '51, passed away unexpectedly on Friday, June 27, 1975. He graduated first in his class and acquired the reputation of being an outstanding lawyer, having handled almost 10,000 cases during his years in court.

In 1965, he was promoted to Assistant Chief of the Trial Division and from there he quickly advanced to become chief trial deputy to former District Attorney Evelle Younger. When Younger was elected State District Attorney in 1970, Mr. Busch was unanimously appointed to the vacant post and in 1972 was elected District Attorney. It was in this capacity that he created the Consumer and Environmental Protection Unit and established the Narcotics and Dangerous Drug section that coordinates major drug investigations throughout the county.

CLARENCE W. HULL, '26, passed away in San Mateo on December 27, 1974. Some of his classmates were J. W. Mullin, Jr., the Honorable John Costello and his brother Mark Costello, James McCandless, the Honorable Louis H. Burke, and Martin J. Burke.

After serving some time in the District Attorney's Office of Los Angeles, Mr. Hull went into private practice. In 1940, he joined the Maritime Commission in Washington, D.C. In 1945, he was appointed Regional Counsel of War Assets Administration in Los Angeles. He came to San Francisco in 1949 to serve as Regional Counsel of General Services Administration until his retirement in 1967. We are grateful to Mrs. Hull for passing along this information.
