Gregory Rose '95 Elected President of Alumni Board of Governors

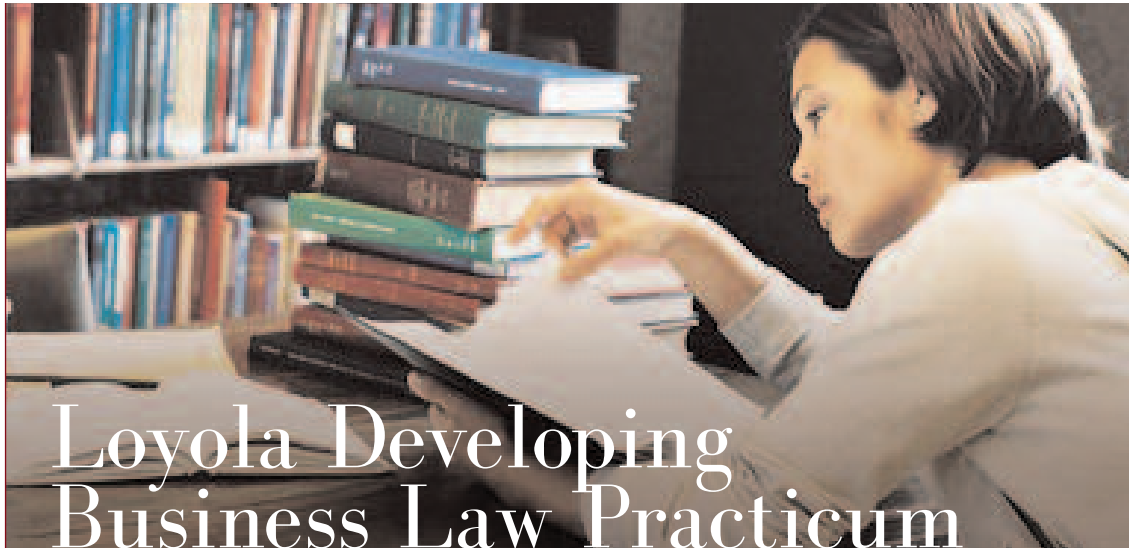

Gregory Rose '95 was elected president of the Board of Governors of the Loyola Law School Alumni Association, and will serve during the 2006 term. Rose said, "I am honored to have this opportunity to serve Loyola, and look forward to working with the Board and Loyola's alumni."

Rose has long been active in the Loyola Law School community—as a student, he was a first-year section representative to the Student Bar Association and he won Best Advocate on the 1994–95 Scott Moot Court Team. He has been a member of Loyola's Alumni Board of Governors for over six years. He is also a member of the Directors Guild of America, and is currently the executive director of business affairs for Sony Pictures Television International Production. He has a BA from Stanford University and an MFA from USC's School of Cinema.

Loyola Law's Alumni Association, with over 13,000 members, was established to help the School maintain its high-quality legal education, assist students and graduates with career development, advocate the highest standards of professional conduct and promote camaraderie in the Law School community. Rose said, "The Board will continue to fulfill this mission through its mentorship program, participation in community service and fundraising to support Loyola initiatives."

The Board is always ready to welcome participation in the Alumni Association, and Rose encourages alums to contact Carmen Ramirez, executive director of advancement, with ideas. She can be reached at 213.736.1046 or carmen.ramirez@lls.edu.

Loyola Developing Business Law Practicum

Most law schools and law firms do not commit resources to developing lawyers who can hit the ground running. Loyola is developing its Business Law Practicum to fill this void, and it will offer a unique and innovative approach to educating business lawyers.

Loyola's Business Law Practicum will develop new materials that encompass an entirely new way of teaching deal-oriented law. It will allow students to study and understand transactions using a simulated deal format that will include a substantial focus on the ethical considerations that face the modern transactional lawyer.

The Practicum will include a capstone course, divided into two free-standing classes—Business Planning: Financing the Start Up and Emerging Growth Business and Business Planning: Selling the Business. Taken in the third year, these classes will allow students to study the entire life cycle of a typical business, and to synthesize and build on substantive law in a practical, real-world setting. Since the capstone course will ask students to review, draft and edit documents typical to a certain type of deal, the classes will simulate transactional work in a law firm and students will be evaluated as they would in a real law firm.

Alums like Robert Pardo '86 are enthusiastic about the program, saying, "I think the Business Law Practicum will provide students interested in a transaction practice with real-world knowledge and skills that will be beneficial to them as young lawyers and to the clients they serve. This will be a unique program, and this type of innovative thinking makes me very proud to be a Loyola alum."

The Business Law Practicum represents a new way for Loyola Law to continue to prepare its students for success and to contribute to the legal profession. Please contact Professor Therese Maynard at therese.maynard@lls.edu with any questions about this new program.

The Business Planning course I took at Loyola was very valuable in my first few months of practice at Paul Hastings. The drafting exercises and due diligence problems were very similar to the tasks I complete now, and I recommend this class to any student who envisions being a corporate transactional lawyer."

GREG L. EZOR '05
PAUL, HASTINGS, JANOFSKY & WALKER LLP

"No aspiring transactional attorney should leave Loyola without taking Business Planning. This unique course provided extremely relevant hands-on experience, and the assignments were highly representative of the work I am doing as a first year corporate associate. I received valuable individualized feedback and I the skills necessary to succeed—skills that transcend any area of practice at any firm, large or small."
