Summer 2007

Class of 2007 Welcomed to Loyola Law School Alumni Association

At an on-campus mixer, Loyola Law's Alumni Association Board of Governors welcomed the Class of 2007 to the alumni association and kicked off a class gift campaign.

The mixer was a terrific success, connecting new graduates with alums and bringing in $42,225 in pledges—a record! The class gift will be presented to the School at the Swearing-In Ceremony in December 2007.

Loyola Law School's alumni regularly return to campus for events like these—they prepare students for job interviews, teach classes, join panel discussions, recruit prospective students and gather at social events. They continue to be an invaluable and accessible resource to our students.

Allan Ides '79 Named Bradley Chair in Constitutional Law

Loyola Law School proudly congratulates Professor Allan Ides '79, named the James F. Bradley Chair in Constitutional Law.

Ides was presented with the Bradley Chair on May 23rd at the California Club. Faculty, friends and family attended the presentation and reception. Of Ides and the Bradley Chair, Dean David Burcham '84, said, "The Bradley Chair in Constitutional Law has long been held by Christopher May, a beloved teacher and distinguished scholar. It is fitting that the new holder, Allan Ides, also a gifted teacher and scholar, is a former student of Professor May and co-author with May of several books."

The Bradley Chair was inaugurated in 1983 thanks to a gift from the estate of James F. Bradley '37. Bradley, a sole practitioner and corporate executive, was deeply influenced by Rev. Joseph Donovan, SJ, former regent, Howard Ziemann, former dean, and Walter H. Cook, former professor. Their teachings prompted Bradley and his wife, Harriet L. Bradley, to establish the chair.

Allan Ides graduated summa cum laude from Loyola Law School in 1979. He then served as a law clerk to the Hon. Clement F. Haynsworth, Jr., chief judge of the US Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit, and to the Hon. Byron R. White, associate justice of the US Supreme Court. Following his clerkships, Ides was an associate with Hufstедler, Miller, Carlson & Beardsley.

Ides joined the Loyola faculty in 1982 and served as associate dean for academic affairs from 1984-87. From 1989-1997, Ides was a member of the law school faculty at Washington & Lee. He returned to Loyola in 1997.

"The Bradley Chair in Constitutional Law has long been held by Christopher May, a beloved teacher and distinguished scholar. It is fitting that the new holder, Allan Ides, also a gifted teacher and scholar, is a former student of Professor May and co-author with May of several books."

Ides has published extensively in Constitutional law and civil procedure. He has also participated in many pro-bono projects and was honored with the Distinguished Professor Award by the ACLU of Southern California. Ides and his wife, Cindi, have been married 34 years. They have three children, two dogs, an unruly garden and all the usual aches and pains.

Endowed chairs are one of the benchmarks by which schools are measured—at Loyola Law School, endowed chairs help to recruit top faculty, who will raise the level of teaching and research for all faculty.
